

Helena Reháková

Helena Rehakova has started out as a licensed translator and later entered the area of technical standardization and quality systems certification, translated the ISO 9000 standards into Slovak and gave lectures at several national events. In 1993, as a member of an international pilot project, she finished a post-graduate MBA study of General Management in Krems, Austria.

In 1996, she created a national management magazine Manazer and works as its Editor In Chief today. Besides, she is a management consultant (systems, people interventions) for ibis partner s.r.o. of which she is the co-owner.